Course descriptions

Advanced strategy

The field of strategy, and this course, attempts to address the central issue in business: why do some firms outperform other firms? It is empirically evident that there are significant profitability differences between industries, and there are significant profitability differences between firms within industries. In the three modules in this course, we will develop an understanding of what underlies such inter-industry and inter-firm profitability differences.

In the first module, we will systematically examine what drives inter-industry profitability differences and how firms can engage in effective strategy-making. Then, we transition to understanding intra-industry, inter-firm profitability differences and examine the role of firm strategy in discriminating between good and bad performance. This module mainly focuses on how businesses should compete within industries. Module three examines corporate strategy, i.e., which industries should firms compete in and what instruments are available to do so effectively, by entering new geographic market or launching new products. The final module aims to sensitize students to the societal context within which business operates and how this might constrain the choice of strategy.

The goal of this course is to equip students with tools, frameworks, and vocabularies to analyse and communicate a firm's strategy.

Branding

Branding has become a topic of high interest to businesses, not just in its traditional area of consumer markets, but across B to B, Services, drugs and vaccines, and other markets. Branding is not only concerned with advertising or logo design, but entails a variety of elements that, together, contribute to create value.

Brands are ubiquitous. They appear omnipresent in our society and play a vital role in most markets. The course dives into their functioning and centers itself around their sociocultural significance.

The course will explore what branding means and its profound implications for the company as a whole. Consumer goods are the starting point because it is in this arena that branding concepts are most established, but their application to other industries will be also discussed.

Cultural Activities

Corporate Visits

We are convinced that companies and school must work hand in hand to face major economic and societal disruptions and together provide new answers to the world's challenges.

Thanks to our large network of corporate partners, company visits are also planned. These visits, designed to provide participants with a first hand look at "real world" business contexts in France are fully integrated into the Summer School' program.

Examples of corporate visits:

Annie / Rollins College / 2019 Summer School

“Studying abroad is a memory that lasts a lifetime. At emlyon business school, I was able to do more than further my business education. By collaborating with students from across the globe – America, Hong Kong, Canada, Morocco, Italy, Guatemala, Russia – I learned to see the world differently. I made new friends that I still keep in touch with today. And I was able to experience so much of the beauty, history and cultural value of the city of Lyon. It was truly unforgettable!”

Letizia / Luiss Business School / 2019 Summer School

“emlyon business school is well organized and very oriented to innovation also thanks to its famous incubator of startups. Our class was composed by students from all over the world: USA, Canada, China, Morocco and Russia. This mix of different cultures permitted us to live a very constructive experience. The course was interesting even if short. We talked a lot about business and we had moments of discussion in class. Lyon is one of the most beautiful European cities that I have visited: full of young people, bars, music, places to visit and things to do! I loved it.”

Michelle / Rollins College / 2019 Summer School

“I greatly enjoyed my study abroad experience at emlyon business school. The professors helped us learn so much more about French and European business culture. The other students were from all over the world so it was truly a multi-cultural experience.”

Lyon-Ecully campus

The business school's historical campus is situated in pleasant, rural surroundings just 15 minutes from the centre of Lyon in the town of Ecully. The buildings, located in a large 15-acre park, provide 30,000 m² of office and teaching space.

In line with the business school's digitalization strategy, this space is under transformation, notably with the opening of the learning hub in 2015 and the 45/4 space. In 2016, the installation of the new incubator and makers' lab, in the heart of the campus, became the first ever creativity & learning hub in Europe. Two halls of residence - the Drakkar and the Galion - house over 300 rooms and studio apartments.
