Dear colleagues and friends,

it is with great pleasure of the local organization team to welcome you to the third conference on the Political Economy of Democracy and Dictatorship (PEDD 2019) at the University of Münster in Germany. It is now the third PEDD conference following the first two, which took place in Münster in 2017 and 2018. PEDD 2019 is again a joint project of the Chair of Political Economy together with Mario Ferrero of the University of Eastern Piedmont, Mario Gilli of Bicocca University Milan, Italy, and Yuan Li of the University of Duisburg-Essen, Germany. PEDD generally aims at promoting research and academic discourse on the origins, mechanisms and consequences of different types of political regimes. We seek to produce new insights on the dynamics of transition processes from dictatorship to democracy and vice versa, on the relation between political regimes and economic prosperity as well as on the micro-structure of (in)stability of comparative political regimes. But foremost, bringing together scholars interested in interdisciplinary work on comparative political systems is at the heart of our endeavor.

Like the preceding conferences, PEDD 2019 will again take place in the city of Münster which provides an excellent and picturesque backdrop, particularly so for an interdisciplinary conference on the political economy of democracy and dictatorship. The city does not only look back on some 1,200 years of turbulent history. It also became famous for being one of the two cities in which the European powers negotiated the famous Westphalian Peace Treaty, which ended the Thirty Years’ War in 1648, one of the most devastating wars in European history. This Westphalian Peace marks a milestone on the way to a European framework of peace and mutual respect. Münster's historical Town Hall hosts the Peace Hall where the historical treaties were signed. It is located in the center of Münster's charming Old Town which, having been almost completely destroyed in World War II, was meticulously reconstructed along the lines of its original appearance. Adjacent to Münster's St. Pauls Cathedral with its bishop's seat we find the late gothic St. Lamberti Church as well as the Town Hall amidst rows of gabled houses and colonnades, together composing what Münster's citizens are proudly referring to as their “Prinzipalmarkt” (principal market).

Today, Münster is one of Germany's most renowned and vibrant centers of science, education and culture. Having won the UN award for the most livable city of its size in 2004, it ideally combines high standards of science with a most livable environment. Münster hosts one of the largest universities in Germany with over 44,000 students. More than 10,000 students are enrolled in programs of numerous other colleges. Münster School of Business and Economics is one of the largest departments at the university, and also one of the largest business and economics departments in Germany. As such, it covers a broad range of fields in both research and education. Being an integral part of this department, the Center of Interdisciplinary Economics (CIW) with its Chair of Political Economy promotes economic research and teaching that crosses the border between economics and political science, in particular fields such as the political economy of institutions, the economics of political transitions and the origins and consequences of violent conflict.

The organizers thank all those that helped making PEDD 2019 become reality. The local organization team is particularly indebted to the perfect assistance by our office managers Kerstin Heitmann and Clementine Kessler as well as by our student assistants. Without the dedication and commitment of these people, there would not be a PEDD conference. We are looking forward to an insightful and inspiring PEDD conference 2019.

Sincerely,

The Local Organization Team
